1974 . . . we came to Methodist College for many reasons . . .

. . . to learn of changes and innovations . . . to learn facts and formulas, theories and philosophies . . .

. . . to grow and to discover . . . to lead and to be led . . . to learn, through being and doing, to be the best we can be . . .

... to see the evils of poverty and overpopulation
... to become aware of corruption and ignorance .
to learn of war and environmental pollution .

. . . to conform to the group

. . . to be sure to be ourselves . . .

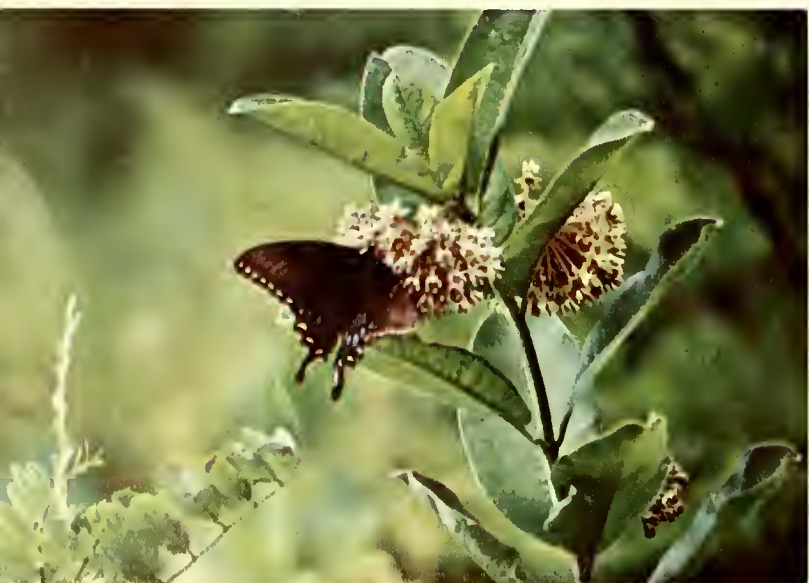

. . . to find life and to live it
 . . . to find love and to share it
 . . . to find happiness and to spread it . . .

. . . to discover beauty and to appreciate it . . .

. . . to come to know ourselves and the world around us through the never ending process of learning . . .

One by one the bombs drop;
Two by two the buildings flop;
Three by three the sirens call;
Four by four the people fall;
Five by five the bullets fly;
Six by six the nations die;
Seven by seven computers clink;
Eight by eight the navies sink;
Nine by nine the mountains bend;
ten by ten the missiles end . . .
None by none . . . all over again.

harry

harry never loved anybody.
Leastways, no one ever loved harry.
When we played, harry watched;
if the teacher asked harry a question he'd lower his head and mumble something.
Once harry tried to play softball with us, but we laughed at him. At first he stood there glaring at us, and I thought he was ganna get mad, but it only lasted a second before he lowered his head a little,
then he looked up and said, "It's not fair."
And then he lowered his head again and walked off.
After that he never tried to get in anything: sports, clubs, or anything. He didn't even have his class pictures made.
In fact, I guess harry had his only picture made today, but it's not a very good likeness because his head isn't lowered. Good or not, it's on the front page of the newspaper cause it's big news when someone hangs himself, even if it's just harry.

GET YOUR FEET WET

I searched mile over miles of rat infested dwellings only to find the cruel dampened odor of death

The reasons for scent were near to be found there did lie the masterpiece now a part of the ground

I wept very quickly for creation was at hand for the masterpiece now becomes a lump of the land

why is creation as quick to decide who's next in these dwellings then to take them in stride

It was a masterpiece a work of art which once stood in that Hell but meaning little to no one perhaps creation ends well

one eagle in the sky

One eagle flys high and lonely in the sky.

One duck swims silently on a pond.

Somewhere one heart stands alone, locked in a cage, waiting for the dawn.

In the midst of all the silence came guitar strings . . . stretched into a tune . . .

Breaking all the emptiness of the world in little pieces that sat in a chair in the middle of nothing . . . and cried . . .

because no one ever . . . cared . . . enough to sing it a song. And many a thing has died from lack of a song, many a person because no one . . . cared . . .

enough to play them a tune, or just because they didn't understand the words.

One child crouches in the corner of an alley, hiding from the violence.

Somewhere a heart sits alone in the middle of a room, stifled by the silence.

Spring Festival!

Thursday . . . the bubble popped and many faces appeared at the Student Union ready to dance introducing "Calabash". Fun was also found at the J.C. Hut party, next came faces with smiles, feet with action, ears wide open signifying loads of enjoyment "Sweet Thursday" brought at the amphitheater.

Descending through the doors of the Downtowner, many people found "Mothers Finest" such an asset to Spring Festival . . . where Karlene Wagner was crowned May Queen '73.

Memories will always be remembered from all the fun of Spring Festival 1973!

Homecoming

Members of the 1973 Homecoming Court were: Miss Starie Stevenson; Miss Gayle Worth; Miss Linda Allvord, Queen; Miss Brenda Hester; and Miss Dusty Woodbury.

Let's take a glimpse to the actions of Homecoming 1973 . . . Many laughs came Thursday night during Miss Boiler Plant Pageant. A big applause with gaiety surrounded many people Friday night at the Homecoming Dance, starring "Autumn" at the Ramada Inn. Saturday afternoon brought several happy events as our soccer team defeated N.C. Wesleyan and the crowning of our Homecoming Queen, 1973, Miss Linda Allvord. Cumberland Hall was awarded first prize in the Homecoming Decorations competition. The appearances of "Wet Willy" and "Hue and Cry" were two delightful concerts and brought contentment throughout the audience. Homecoming 1973 was an enjoyable weekend from the very beginning to the very end!!!!

The legislative branch of the Student Government is the Senate. It is made up of four voting members and one alternate member from each class, four day student representatives, and one representative from each dormitory. Meeting regularly, the Senate struggles to make improvements in the constitution, by-laws, and rules that govern Methodist College students.

Sanford Hall has been very active this year, especially in extracurricular activities. For instance, a group of students helped set the trash can between Sanford and Cumberland Halls on fire. Also members threw firecrackers out the windows at certain members of the faculty. The dorm did some constructive things, such as Homecoming decorations. Little studying and much playing constitute life at Sanford Hall.

Weaver Hall, constructed in 1965, is the newer of the two women's dormitories. Under the direction of Mrs. Huldah B. Jones, the women of Weaver are known for their involvement in almost every club and activity on campus.

This year Weaver sponsored a Freshman Orientation Dance, a Hot Dog Roast in the fall, and a dance in February featuring Sunstorm. During the week of Homecoming, Weaver was given Honorable Mention for their dorm decorations. With panty raids and fire crackers, with water fights and practical jokes, the women of Weaver Hall feel that theirs is the best dorm on campus.

Scientific Knowledge

Molds Intelligent Citizens

Everyone ought to know at least a little bit about everything. This variety of knowledge is what makes college a truly enriching experience, says Dr. Margaret Folsom, Methodist College's new science teacher. This is why she believes that the Science 100 course is a good idea. The course enables students to have a general orientation to the sciences, which is important.

Dr. Folsom, who attended the University of Northern Iowa, Iowa State University, and N. C. State before coming to Methodist, believes that an education which consists of science is very important. The reason for this belief is a good one. We live in a society today that has seen quite a few changes in the past few years. Fields such as the environment, medicine, and science have been greatly affected by various changes. The more a person knows about science, the more he can help society. Basic scientific knowledge can help mold an individual into a citizen who knows how to make intelligent decisions.

For this reason, parents and teachers should encourage their children's interest in science when the children are young, so that their interest won't die. Dr. Folsom is afraid that some adults unconsciously discourage their children's interest in science.

Everyone remembers favorite projects that they did while they were in school, and Dr. Folsom is no exception. Both of her favorite projects were done during her college years, and both were collections. One of her projects was an insect collection. She enjoyed this because it showed her the real variety of animals that existed around her. Her other collection, which was of plants, was also fun. Although Dr. Folsom's orientation is more in lab than in the field, she enjoys going out on field trips because they provide an opportunity to enjoy the fresh air and see what's going on around you.

Dr. Folsom is happy with Methodist College because she feels that it is a good school. When she was asked what changes she would like to see in the Methodist College Science Department, her answer was more majors and a greater variety of courses. If more electives were made available, it would be better for the students and more fun for the faculty. However, she feels that the core program here is excellent.

Science is obviously something that Dr. Folsom enjoys, but she has other interests as well. She likes to read historical novels, especially the ones that deal with Tudor England or the Irish Revolution. Current events and conservation also hold her interests, although her favorite hobby consists of cats. She has lots of Persian and Himalayan cats, as well as two dogs.

Looking towards the future, Dr. Folsom says that she would enjoy doing some research although she admits that she is very happy as a teacher at a liberal arts school. She feels that she is doing exactly what she wants to do.

MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM THE SMALL TALK STAFF!

Miss Allvord Crowned

Miss Linda Elizabeth Allvord was crowned Homecoming Queen of Methodist College Saturday, November 3, at the college's soccer match against North Carolina Wesleyan.

The new queen, a senior Spanish major, is also a dean's list student. A graduate of Paulsboro (N.J.) High School, Linda is president of her dorm, Weaver Hall, and is also president of Esperanza Spanish Club.

Other members of the court were Dusty Woodbury (first runner-up), Margaret Stevenson (second runner-up), Brenda Hester (third runner-up), and Gail Worth (fourth runner-up).

What Effect Does the Military Have On M. C. ?

Recently, SMALL TALK ran a poll on what effect the military has on Methodist College. The answers we got were the following:

John Gooden: Their biggest effect is the stabilization from a monetary standpoint because of the number of military and V. A. men here.

Marie Beane: Their presence here makes it possible for the students to get to know them, which is really nice. They're interesting to talk to!

David Russell: Money. The military has a big effect. Competitions they're also good, because they're usually older and have good study habits. They're more disciplined. My only regret is that they won't get more involved in extra-curricular activities on campus such as Green and Golds Marching Keys.

Linda Dexter: They have the same effect as the students. I'm glad to see anyone who can get an education come to school.

LINDA ALLVORD RECEIVES HER CROWN.

Hand Bell Choir

Mr. Alan Porter, assistant professor of Voice here at Methodist, had the pleasure of attending Florida Southern College in Lakeland, Florida. He was there for two days, October 25 and 26.

The purpose of the trip was to study the organization of a Hand Bell Choir. Florida Southern College is one of the few colleges in the country where academic credit is offered for Hand Bell ringing. Mr. Porter studied with Professor Albert Beam, a well-known. The types of music performed by the Bell Choir range from simple melodies to highly complex and moving pieces.

When asked about the chances of Methodist having a Hand Bell Choir, Mr. Porter replied "We hope to establish one here very soon." The choir would be open to students. A person would need to be a music major to join. A note of interest: Florida Southern has no music majors. The most im-

The Zeta Mu Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta was established as a colony in February of 1974. With sixteen charter members, this is the only women's fraternity on campus. Alpha Xi Delta is one of the ten original members of National Panhellenic Conference, dating back to 1869. The women of this fraternity on the Methodist College campus are very proud to be members and have great aspirations for their chapter.

Methodist College return to speak to the SEA about their teaching experiences.

The Monarchs completed the season with second place in the D.I.A.C. Conference and fifth place in the district. Coach Shelley anticipates a more exciting season in 1974 as there are forty games scheduled including larger universities such as Duke and Wake Forest.

Tennis

This year tennis seats were occupied as follows:

1. Vaughn John
2. Chris Valerie

Track and Field was brought back to Methodist College last spring after a long absence. Track and Field consists of running events which range from short sprints and hurdles to long-distance runs. It also includes jumping events and throwing events. Despite inadequate training facilities and team size, the Monarchs worked hard and strong all season. Many of the athletes had to participate in three or more events, and this weakened the team's performance in that the participants could not concentrate on their major events. Despite these drawbacks many new records were set.

Cross Country

Cross Country is a sport that requires much dedication, desire, and determination. It is not a glory sport, as it is not a spectator sport. In preparation for the upcoming season, the cross country runner must run an average of eight to twenty miles a day so that he will be in shape to run the five mile races as hard as he can. This year's team was led by two returning lettermen, Jim Nash and John Young. The Monarchs managed a 7-3 season and 3rd Place in the conference. Six Monarch harriers lettered this season, and the Monarchs had one all-conference performer, John Young.

ΕΠΙΛΟΓΑΙΣ

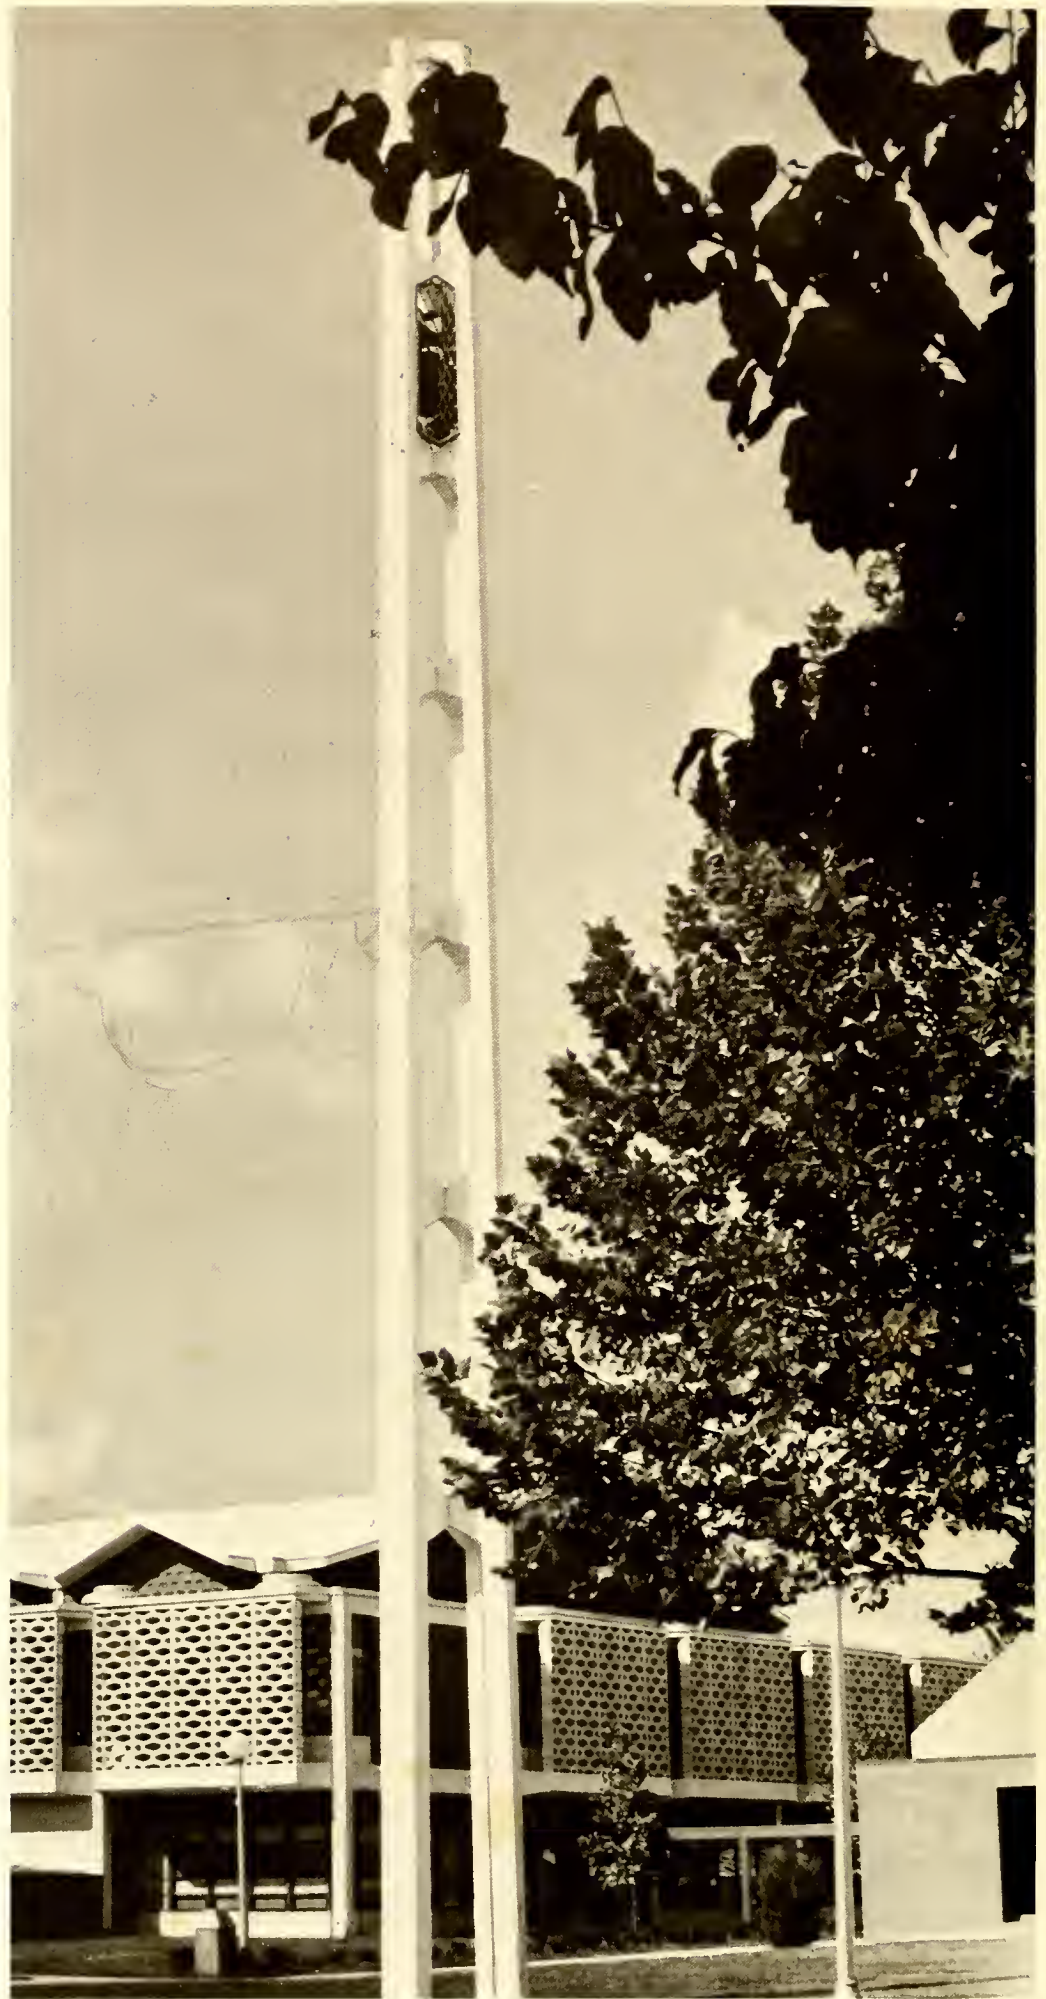

Together we have come to Methodist College. We have strived for excellence and achievement in many areas. We have learned many things from books, from each other, and from the world around us. We have learned to conform and at the same time to be individuals. We have hurried to keep up with the fast pace of the world in 1974, but we have stopped at times to find ourselves and our fellow man.

We have felt the shame and guilt of war, ghettos, and pollution, but we have known the pride and enthusiasm of great individuals and ideals. We have cried aloud because of oppression and injustice in our country, but our hearts have swelled to bursting with the pride and enthusiasm that only freedom can bring.

Together we have come to Methodist College. And together we have learned many things. We have made many friends and established many lasting relations. We are the college, a small institution, a warm relationship, an eagerness to learn of ourselves and of our world in 1974 and always.
